VISIT SHROPSHIRE

OSWESTRY & NORTH

North Shropshire is where you will find meres and mosses, canals and towpaths, and quirky market towns. From the border town of Oswestry, across the Shropshire Plain to Whitchurch and Market Drayton, it's a place for peace and quiet.

VISIT SHROPSHIRE

HILLS & SOUTH

Much of south Shropshire is a designated Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB). Our most famous hills include the Stiperstones and the heather-topped Long Mynd which means 'long mountain' in Welsh.

Shropshire is a place for wandering and discovering. It's for being as adventurous and active as you like, or for seeking rest and relaxation in our tranquil surroundings. Shropshire is a county where little legs can run wild, where tired minds can achieve calm.

Now you know more about Shropshire, when are you coming to explore? www.visitshropshire.co.uk

VISIT SHROPSHIRE

SHREWSBURY & CENTRAL

Shrewsbury is Shropshire's county town and birthplace of Charles Darwin, encircled by a meandering loop of the River Severn. Discover distinctive churches, Shrewsbury Castle, beautiful timber-framed houses and a riverside parkland known as The Quarry.

VISIT SHROPSHIRE

TELFORD & IRONBRIDGE

Ironbridge Gorge, birthplace of the industrial revolution and now a UNESCO World Heritage site, is home to the world-famous iron bridge and ten living history museums. Telford, the 'New Town' of the county named after the engineer Thomas Telford, is a perfect stop for shopping and leisure activities.

WELCOME TO SHROPSHIRE

You could spend a year in Shropshire, exploring every day, and still have adventures left in store. Are you ready to throw yourself into Shropshire?

Shropshire is especially rich in historic sites and opportunities for outdoor activities. Our timeless landscape is perfect for relaxing and exploring. With an exciting food scene and charming market towns, Shropshire is also a wonderful county for eating, drinking and planning a day out shopping.

SHROPSHIRE'S GREAT OUTDOORS

Shropshire is one of England's least densely populated counties. It's a deeply rural part of the world. Encompassing verdant hills, ancient woodlands, windswept moorland and mysterious lakes, the scenery can be spectacular. A quarter of the county is covered by the Shropshire Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, much of which is just as beautiful as our national parks.

CULTURE & EVENTS

All year round, Shropshire has a vibrant arts and culture scene to inspire and entertain. We love festivals in Shropshire too, you could attend a classical music recital in a beautiful church or visit the open studios of local artists. Watch comic artists drawing live, enjoy one of the county's food festivals or dance in a field with hundreds of other music fans.

EAT, DRINK & SLEEP

After all your exploring, you won't be short of places to rest your head in beautiful Shropshire either. Stay deep in the countryside or check into a town centre residence within easy walking distance of pubs, restaurants and bars.

Discover Shropshire's delicious food scene that is fed by rivers, rainfall, rich soil and our traditional farming heritage. Whichever area you visit, you will find shops, eateries and markets that showcase the delicious produce of this astonishingly fertile county.

PRINCE RUPERT HOTEL

★★★★

"4-star luxury in the very heart of Shrewsbury"

Following a significant £1million renovation programme and the addition of a 4th AA star, the first of its kind within the town centre, the Grade II listed Prince Rupert Hotel is now firmly established as the finest hotel within the heart of Shrewsbury. Just a stone's-throw away from all of Shrewsbury's best attractions, the hotel is located within the town's most fashionable and cosmopolitan area of Butcher Row.
